2. An examination of all [REDACTED] Surveys which have been received from [REDACTED] indicates that, except for areas [REDACTED] the principal sources have been [REDACTED] moreover, many of these sources are either out of date or not the best available. To make significant commentary on such material would require a disproportionate amount of time and effort amounting to a comprehensive substantive revision.

3. Recently, the NIS Committee [REDACTED] NIS on Far Eastern and Pacific Areas to [REDACTED] in accordance with State-Defense MIC policies. These will provide [REDACTED] with the best available basic intelligence in the possession of the U.S. on a continuing, comprehensive basis, and should therefore largely reduce the necessity for specific commentary. When such comments are required, [REDACTED] should direct the request for them through existing liaison channels to the Intelligence Agency having primary competence in that particular field of basic intelligence. The Directorate of Intelligence, U.S. Air Force, would consequently be the appropriate agency to comment upon Chapter 25 of the [REDACTED]
